Work-based learning in Educational Environments...

Many Orange County community colleges have an early childhood lab or childcare center, where college students get hands-on experiences working in the field. Many Orange County community colleges offer early field experience courses for students interested in working as aides and educators in K-12 classrooms and afterschool programs. Many programs also include a practicum or occupational work experience in an early childcare center, giving students the real-life skills they need to become caring professionals.

A LIVING WAGE. RIGHT NOW.

In Orange County, demand for elementary and middle school teachers is expected to rise by 13% until 2022—almost double the national average for all jobs.

Enrollment is climbing across all grades, and is expected to grow nearly 10% by 2026, making certified teachers more in-demand than ever!

In Education & Early Childhood Services, professionals aren't just earning paychecks—they're following their calling to make a difference in the lives of young learners.

FOSTERING CURIOSITY, CREATIVITY, AND CARE.

There's nothing more important than nurturing young learners and shaping the next generation of successful students. Through the power of career education, Orange County community colleges are building confident, capable teaching professionals, launching students directly into fulfilling careers.

Education & Early Childhood is perhaps one of the most rewarding industry sectors in Orange County, with rising school enrollment driving unprecedented demand for qualified professionals. In fact, there were over 70,000 job openings for education, child development, and family services related positions in California in 2017. However, there weren't enough qualified applicants, as more than 4,000 jobs remained unfilled.

Ready to start a rewarding career where you can make a positive impact on children and youth? Your nearest Orange County community college has a career education program that can help you answer your calling!

10,613 new positions open annually in the Education and Early Childhood sector, between Orange and Los Angeles Counties.

A FOCUS ON EARLY CHILDHOOD.

Preschool teaching opportunities are expanding by 10% annually, much faster than the average career. Due to ongoing demand in this field, career data website O*Net Online has deemed this a "Bright Outlook Occupation." The average median salary for preschool teachers in California is $34,600, and with experience, that can grow to $50,000+.

FACT

As higher numbers of young students enter kindergarten, more teachers will be needed than ever to foster lifelong learners!
